THANK YOU FOR CHOOSING TO SUPPORT INTERNATIONAL OVERDOSE AWARENESS DAY (OVERDOSE DAY) 2016!

Your support is invaluable to help us create awareness about overdose prevention and provide support to families and friends who have lost loved ones to overdose. People lost due to overdose are not just statistics – they are family and friends.

The tragedy of overdose is far too frequent but is ultimately preventable. Overdose prevention, education and recognition play a crucial role in saving lives and we thank you for getting involved.

GETTING INVOLVED

YOU CAN BECOME PART OF THE CHANGE.

By planning an event, you are taking action to help prevent overdose fatalities. You may choose to help educate people who use drugs, friends, families and the community about the signs of overdose and how to respond effectively. Or you may choose to support those who have lost a loved one to overdose by enabling them to honour and remember that person's life, what they loved about them and what they think about them.

Organising an event, even if it is the first time you are doing one, is not as complicated as you might think.

Your Overdose Day event can be as big and elaborate or as small and intimate as you would like – just do it your way. By bringing your community or even just a few of your friends and supporters together, you can become part of the change!

This event support kit will provide you with information on everything you need to plan and run your own Overdose Day event. Resources are available (eg posters, fact sheets, badges) that will help you to promote your event and make it a memorable experience for yourself and everyone who attends.

Don't have the time to plan an event? There are still loads of other ways that you can be involved by donating to support Overdose Day, engaging on Facebook and Twitter or by partnering with a local organisation! Read on to find out how.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

OVERDOSE DAY DRAWS WORLDWIDE ATTENTION TO THE NEED TO PREVENT AND CREATE AWARENESS ABOUT DRUG OVERDOSE.

Together, communities, families, people who use drugs, government officials, international organisations, businesses and policy makers come together in a shared effort to reduce the tragedy of overdose.

The goals of Overdose Day are:

- to raise awareness of overdose and reduce the stigma of a drug-related death; and
- to acknowledge the grief felt by families and friends remembering those who have met with death or permanent injury as a result of drug overdose.

Overdose Day is a global event held annually on 31 August, an initiative supported by Penington Institute.

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO HELP?

On or around 31 August, you can hold an event to promote awareness in the community in relation to overdose. Events – large or small – can be really effective in increasing community understanding about the issues around safe drug use. Events provide a safe space for families to mourn the loss of their loved ones. Events also provide a great opportunity for communities to come together, learn and support each other.

The team at Penington Institute can provide you with a list of organisations in your local area that are holding Overdose Day related events. These local groups always need assistance with several tasks or might want to partner with other organisations for their event. This is another way that you can choose to be involved. Your support and involvement is crucial to highlight the significance of overdose prevention.

Social media today plays a key role in creating awareness about issues that affect your family and the community around you. You can connect to our social media channels (Facebook: /InternationalOverdoseAwarenessDay; Twitter: @OverdoseDay) and share your messages. Every person you forward information to learns a little more about how overdose affects lives and what they can do to make a difference.

GET STARTED

PLANNING INTERNATIONAL OVERDOSE AWARENESS DAY ACTIVITIES

BEFORE YOU GET INTO THE FINER DETAILS OF ORGANISING YOUR EVENT, HERE ARE A FEW THINGS TO DO NOW:

1 Decide what type of event you want to hold

Whether you want to host a memorial, help spread information about how to prevent an overdose from becoming fatal, or help raise funds for Overdose Day, this will have an impact on your planning, staffing, resources and funds needed to organise your event.

2 Read this event support kit to understand the responsibilities of the event organiser

No matter what the size of your event, it is important to establish your responsibilities as the organiser. This includes having knowledge about local rules and laws, safety protocols, approvals or compliance with any official council or government guidelines. This will make it easier for you to organise the event and help everyone participate in the event without any concerns.

3 Register your event online and let us know about your plans

Our website is where community members interested in attending an event can find out if something is being hosted in the area. Please make sure to register it online. Once registered, we can begin promoting your event to our contacts in the area.

4 Begin your planning

This event support kit is tailored to help all event organisers, no matter what the size, scale or nature of your event is. Whether you are staging a small event for a select group of people, or a ticketed major event in a high profile area, this document will help you with planning, organising and running your event. The Overdose Day team is here to help you so please contact us if you have any queries – we will do our best!

POSTERS & FACT SHEETS

Fact sheets and posters are available for you to download on the Overdose Day website. Many of these are only available in English currently, however please translate these into your local language and please share with us so we can make them available to others around the world.

PROMOTION VIA SOCIAL MEDIA, EMAILS, STRATEGIC PARTNERS

We will be using our social media channels, email database as well as our networks with regional partners to promote this year's events. Make sure you register your event to be included in this promotional activity, and follow our social media channels:

Facebook: /InternationalOverdoseAwarenessDay

Twitter: @OverdoseDay

DISCUSSION OF OVERDOSE

Social media plays a crucial role in engaging the community in discussions about overdose prevention. Our Facebook and Twitter channels will act as a beacon for event tips and ideas, so please join us, keep posting and sharing! For more information, please check section on 'Promote your event'.

CONTACTS OF LOCAL ASSOCIATIONS

Event organisers like you are always on the look out for support staff and volunteers. Should you wish to partner with another organisation or be of assistance to their plans, please contact us to ask about details of events in your area. Working with them could also be an option should you wish be involved in the day but do not have the time or resources to plan your own event.

BADGES

The silver badge is great way to raise awareness and show respect. Please wear the silver badge proudly whenever you can to bring attention to overdose prevention and to honour the lives lost to overdose. Silver badges can be ordered on the Overdose Day website in packs of 10, 20, 50 or more, and can be shipped worldwide. Secure payment can be made via PayPal or Direct Bank Transfer. Order your badges online now at www.overdoseday.com.

TRIBUTES

Tributes are wonderful ways of expressing our love and appreciation to those we have lost and will always value. These tributes are one of the nicest ways through which a departed loved one can be honoured and remembered by those he or she has left behind. We encourage you to post tributes on the IOAD website – this in turn will help others grieve and celebrate their loved one's life.

YOUR EVENT

EVENT IDEAS

EDUCATION AND AWARENESS-RAISING EVENTS

Walk/ride to remember. Create a positive vision of health and wellbeing by organising a walk, run or ride for your community. Provide a safe, well lit and surfaced area for people to undertake these activities, eventually converging to commemorate and learn more about overdose and its prevention. As a medium-sized endeavour, this could be used as a fundraising initiative by charging participation fees.

MEMORIAL EVENTS

Memorial events, like candlelight vigils or a walk, help us remember the lives of loved ones lost and bring people together to support one another. If possible, organise a guest speaker and provide time for story sharing. This can be done with a lunch event or morning tea. This is also a good way to provide information to the community about symptoms, prevention and naloxone including any overdose prevention training. Other memorial events could include tree planting, banner signing, tribute writing, singing songs and public speaking.

FAITH-BASED EVENTS

For individual or organisation motivated by faith, creating a faith or religion based event could bring the community together to remember the lives lost to overdose. Many in the community are motivated by faith and might seek support from avenues that reflect these values. Prayer meetings, lighting candles in remembrance of their loved ones, singing hymns and songs, could form elements of an Overdose Day event. You can also take advantage of local worship leaders who can promote overdose prevention messages as well as nurture a supportive environment for people who use drugs and their loved ones.

COMMUNITY EVENTS

Community events are a great way of getting everyone from the age of 7 to 77 to get involved – anything from small and fun bowling games, bingo nights to music concerts, lunch/dinner with raffles. You can make it as simple or as elaborate as you wish depending on the time and resources you have available. Something as enjoyable as a community meal can bring locals together to learn about overdose and share memories with others.

WORKPLACE EVENTS

Your workplace is a great avenue for spreading the messages about overdose awareness and its prevention. Hold morning/afternoon tea with information on safer use of drugs and overdose prevention made available. If you can, find someone to present education on safer use of drugs. This not only creates a healthier, more accepting work environment that de-stigmatises drug use but enables people to talk about the challenges and losses that they have suffered while coping with overdose.

If you have event ideas that you would like to organise, please do share with us!

PROMOTE YOUR EVENT

Don't forget to promote your event within your community and networks. It enables people to become involved and promote greater awareness about overdose prevention. Promoting your event within your own networks will go a long way.

Here are some templates you can use to promote your event.

TOOLS & RESOURCES

EVENT CHECKLIST

This event checklist provides you with a plan to ensure that your Overdose Day event is well-organised and within budget. Use our activity planner (attached) as a guide to help you plan and stay on track. We have listed our top tips that will help you run your event smoothly and be as stress-free as possible:

PLAN YOUR EVENT

- Choose venue/locations
- Allocate committee or group of friends/staff who can help you with the event
- Set objectives for event – fundraising, awareness raising or memorial
- Set budget or financial goal (if fundraising)
- Register your event with us
- Check Overdose Day website to download promotion materials

VENUE AND OTHER LOGISTICS

- Consider weather conditions – outdoor versus indoor venue
- Negotiate prices for venue based on your event requirements (if applicable)
- Source and book catering (if applicable)
- Read all contractual obligations (terms and conditions)
- For outdoor events, please ensure you check that the area is secure and safe. It might also be beneficial to have an alternate plan in the case of bad weather (for example an indoor venue with clear plan to redirect people in and out)
- Determine what audio-visual equipment you will need (laptop, projector, sound system, microphone, TV and DVD player etc) and if any of these are provided free of charge by the venue (or by the local community)
- Check venue/area for safety hazards, fire exits and availability of a first-aid kit
- Ensure venue/area as well as washroom facilities are well lit and wheelchair accessible
- Ensure that parking requirements are adequate

PROMOTION

- Get in touch with your local media – local newspaper, community magazines and radio station and know their deadlines
- Source local business support and/or sponsorship for catering, printing and other requirement
- Source ambassadors in local area if required, encourage people to share their stories in their community
- Use Overdose Day supplied material to write to local councils and politicians to create awareness about overdose and its prevention
- Send invitations and emails to friends and supporters to attend event
- Use social media and emails to encourage friends and supporters to attend event, retweet and share content from Overdose Day's social media pages to spread awareness
- Seek permission and post or handout flyers in local shopping and community areas, schools, workplaces and cafes

THE DAY OF YOUR EVENT

- Talk about why overdose awareness and prevention is important to your community!
- Print suitable handout materials for attendees (e.g. fact sheets, posters)
- Prepare a task list for yourself and your team
- Provide event runsheet to volunteers to inform them of what happens when
- Obtain photography/video consent from attendees before commencing event
- If collecting donations, ensure that you provide receipts for every donation (at the event or collect address to mail them the receipt) and that you have a safe place to store donations
- Remember to enjoy the event – know that you are making a big difference!

AFTER YOUR EVENT

- Do not forget to thank everyone who has helped you plan, organise and manage your event
- Send a follow-up email/communication to all attendees to share with them the impact of your event if you know who they are
- If you have collected a list of attendees and have their prior consent to collect and forward their details, please send this list to us as we will then ensure that they are sent communication from us in the future regarding any new activities, events, developments, news and ways they could be involved
- Send us your photos and event experiences. We want to celebrate your successes and show the breadth of Overdose Day around the globe. Stories help us motivate future event organisers and inform them about the impact of your event.
